

Serre du Mouton

Embrunais

(Rémi Morel - Serre-Ponçon)

This hike takes in the views of the Lac de Serre-Ponçon and gives you a close-up view of the Aiguilles de Chabrière.

"What I liked about this route is that you go from forest, to areas of wooded meadows until arriving below the aiguilles de Chabrières where the vegetation gives way to white expanses with a breathtaking view of Lake Serre-Ponçon"

1. From the ski pass ticket offices, turn left towards the forest to join a wide track. Turn right uphill, then left at the intersection.
2. At the "Piste de Joubelle" post turn right onto the uphill path. Further on, this joins a track that you have to follow uphill.
3. Once you reach a flat area at the edge of the forest, go left, winding through the forest to reach another track higher up which you must take on the way up. This leads to a clearing; cross it and then climb the slope to the right. The path leaves the forest at the "Serre du mouton" post.
4. From here, continue uphill until you reach the first lookout.
5. Go back up the ski slope for 200m, then turn left after some cliffs on a steep climb. Follow the ridge to the top of the station and continue as far as an orientation table beneath the majestic Aiguilles de Chabrières.
6. The return journey takes the same route.

✿ Milk Vetch (A)

The astragalus alopercurus (from alopex: fox and oura; tail) is a spectacular plant due to its size. It has long leaves with many leaflets. It blossoms when the weather gets warmer and shows off a beautiful cluster of flowers at the top of a tall hairy stem. Several yellow corolla grow out through thick protective hair to take in the sunshine and the warm summer winds.
